Inclusion in School and Education - Challenges and Conditions for Success

Participation is free of charge. Please note that registration for the conference is required.

The establishment and implementation of inclusion in schools represents a challenging, fundamental development task for schools and their stakeholders, but also for education administrators, school supervisory authorities and politicians. With the claim of an "inclusive education system at all levels" (UN, 2006 Art. 24), they have been dealing with the task of initiating and implementing an inclusion-oriented transformation process for almost 20 years.

What lines of development are currently evident in schools, regions and countries? Where have resources been built up and expanded, models developed and practices established in order to come closer to the goal of dealing productively with heterogeneity? What conditions need to be in place for this school and system development task to be successfully mastered?

The Symposium explores these and other questions at school, regional, national and international level and aims to uncover potential, but also to identify hurdles and stumbling blocks that have so far made participation and recognition difficult for everyone.

Do you have an issue you would like to discuss?

We would be delighted if you could make an active contribution - research-based or practice-oriented - to the Symposium, present a current study or a critical contribution on current challenges of inclusion in schools and education, e.g. in the form of a short presentation or short input of max. 15 minutes. Please describe your topic informally in a short e-mail to WELS@EduLead.net. Thank you very much.

Join us to discuss empirical data, solutions and strategies for implementing inclusion in schools and education!

In keynote speeches and discussion rounds with colleagues from schools, education science, school supervision and education administration, politics, associations and other experts, the WELSpocus will discuss problems and possible solutions from multiple perspectives in a committed and profound manner.

Various roundtables and other interactive and innovative formats enable active exchange and systematic as well as spontaneous networking with colleagues.

The program will be published soon.

Participation in WELSpocus is free of charge in order to enable the greatest possible networking between science, politics, administration and practice.
